VETERANS DAY

— Honoring All Who Served —

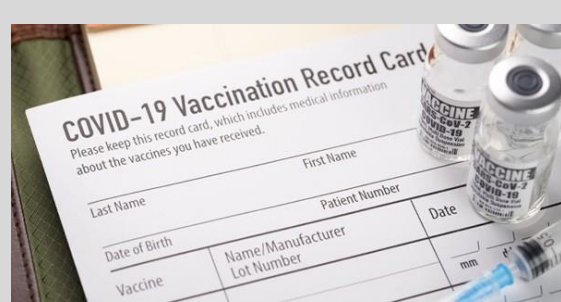

On Veterans Day, we honor those who have served in the past, present and pays tribute to those who will serve in the future.

This November 11th, a Veterans Day Moment of Silence calls on all Americans to observe two minutes of silence beginning at 3:11 pm Atlantic standard time, (1:11 pm CST) in honor of the service and sacrifice of veterans throughout the history of the nation. The 3:11 pm time was chose because in 1918, on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month, an armistice, or temporary cessation of hostilities, was declared between the Allied nations and Germany in World War I.

The difference in how Veterans are honored on this day compared to Memorial Day - as the name implies; Memorial Day is a time to pay respect and honor those who have died either while serving their country, as a result of military service, or after they have finished serving as a retired or separated veteran.

AGC Summary of Vaccine and Testing ETS

Safety Tip: Who Needs OSHA 10 Training vs OSHA 30 Training?

OSHA Training, most often referred to as OSHA 10 Training and OSHA 30 Training, provides workers with basic training about some of the most common health and safety hazards on the job. The 10-hour training program is primarily intended for entry level workers. The 30-hour training program is intended to provide workers who have some safety responsibility a greater depth and variety of training.

The purpose is to "promote workplace safety and health and to make workers more knowledgeable about workplace hazards and their rights."

Even though OSHA does not require anyone to complete the OSHA 10-hour or 30-hour Outreach Training courses... some states, municipalities, and private companies have made the classes mandatory for their workers.

It is a common practice in the construction industry for employees to go through OSHA classes specified for construction.

Benefits of Training

Whether you are required to or not, giving your workers the opportunity to complete their 10-hour or 30-hour OSHA training can be highly beneficial, both for you and them:

- It shows that you have made a good-faith effort to improve safety in your workplace, which helps reduce the severity of OSHA fines and penalties.
- It gives workers a strong foundation to understand workplace hazards and the importance of safety.
- It sets the tone for a positive safety culture among your employees.
- It helps reduce the number of accidents and injuries in the workplace.
- It's appealing to hiring companies, insurance providers, and other key stakeholders who want to see low incident rates.

Passage Of Bipartisan Infrastructure Bill Will Provide A Needed Boost To Construction Industry While Making The Economy More Efficient

“The reason the Bipartisan Infrastructure Bill passed in the House today is because a majority of Representatives understand that this measure will provide significant, tangible improvements to their lives of the constituents and the success of their local employers...

“Once the President signs this bill into law, our members are ready to begin the hard, but necessary, work of rebuilding the nation’s infrastructure. They will also begin the work of building rewarding careers for a generation of new construction professionals because of this measure. Ultimately, these new infrastructure investments will provide a needed boost for the construction industry while making our economy more efficient.”

Construction's Career Crisis: Keeping Workers on Site and in the Industry

Climbing out of the labor shortage requires training new leadership, changing jobsite culture and investing in technology and safety, experts say.

"If you're going to start attracting people who've typically been underrepresented in the industry, it's time to drop the pinup calendar in the jobsite trailer," said Turmail. "It's time to think twice before you make a joke."

To the superintendents or managers who may resist the cultural change, Turmail suggested it may be an easier decision for them when they must deliver a project on a tight schedule, and need all the help they can get to complete it.
